Message from Chairman

Dear Friends-

This has been a historic year. Covid-19 has caused us all to rely on science for solutions. And science has delivered in abundance, including developing, testing, and producing effective vaccines in record times. It's important to recognize how much we have all lost in the last year, but we can also appreciate just how much we achieved. The Centre for Integrated Development has helped large number of people through different activities and support. I'm immensely proud of how we responded to the pandemic. I attribute our resilience to the dedication of our people and the single-minded clarity of our mission.

The Centre for Integrated Development was founded in 1992 with the goal of encouraging and supporting underprivileged people. The organization sought chances and reshaped itself to better serve its constituents. The Centre for Integrated Development presently collaborates on projects with a wide range of developmental organizations, corporate, institutional, and individual contributors in areas such as education, child labour, health, community empowerment, environment, disability, and Sahariya primitive Tribes.

I am delighted to announce that CID has completed 30 years of serving for the betterment of society. Throughout 5 million individuals have been touched by CID and have benefited directly or indirectly over the years.

I would like to congratulate and thank the whole CID team for their unequalled energy, excitement, passion, and hard work in attaining the goals set forth under the projects and initiatives they worked on during the previous years. Thank you to all who has contributed to the success of our journey, including our board members, volunteers, and the communities we serve. I also want to point out that without the help of our Partners, our CID Team efforts would not have resulted in effective action, success, or consistency.

Message from Chief Functionary

Dear Friends

It is an honor for me to submit this annual report of the Centre for Integrated Development (www.cidindia.org) for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2022, on behalf of the Centre for Integrated Development. Last year, the COVID-19 pandemic's second wave triggered a life-threatening crisis in the community as well as in healthcare facilities. The CID team established an integrated response right once and reached out to all marginalized families and children in Gwalior's slums.

This report contains a full list of activities and accomplishments. We remain grateful to many of our partners; including Terre des Hommes Suisse, Christoffel Blinden Mission (CBM), ChildLine India, Jivodaya Foundation, SGS, and many other individual donors, volunteers, and interns, who continue to support us.

We feel more than ever appreciation and honor for being destined to impact lives in a meaningful way as we begin preparing this Annual Report 2021 – 22 in a period that is far from what we are used to. Without a doubt, this pandemic is a unique challenge that has affected millions of individuals around the world, causing fear and anxiety about their health, safety, economic viability, and very existence. In these trying times, we have no choice but to act in these times as individuals, families, leaders, organizations, and states.

While the Annual Report spells out all the initiatives we undertook this year, I would like to share with you some of the highlights achieved by us in the year 2021-2022.

Our annual report gives us an opportunity to share the past year's experience and achievements with everyone who has supported the Centre for Integrated Development and contributed to our journey. We are proud of our achievements this year despite the pandemic. We are immensely optimistic about reaching out to more beneficiaries in the current pandemic time. But there is a long journey that lies ahead of us in achieving our vision.

About Centre for Integrated Development

The Centre for Integrated Development (CID) is the brainchild of a group of socially committed philanthropists who came together in 1992 to make a small but important effort that could make a difference in the lives of society's marginalized and excluded people. CID began its operations in Madhya Pradesh's northern region. Madhya Pradesh is known for its backwardness, starving deaths, feudalism, and malpractices, all of which contribute to the state's underdevelopment. In the midst of such poor conditions, there is a ray of optimism as CID continues to work in rural areas of the region to voice the concerns of the most vulnerable members of society. CID has worked on numerous disadvantaged groups of society throughout the span of its 30-year journey, including health, women, children, PWDs, and tribal communities. Multi-dimensional development and promotion of child rights and education for children and abolition of child labor, community health, community development, rural development, gender equality, equity, and poverty reduction through livelihoods and skill development are just a few of our core areas. In Madhya Pradesh, CID works on crucial issues such as hunger, anemia, pneumonia, vitamin deficiency, family planning and sexual reproductive health.

CID is working for the development and welfare of the society on various issues like-

- Child Rights, Child Protection, Child Education
- Women Empowerment,
- Gender Equality and Equity
- Anaemia, Malnutrition, Maternal and Child Health, TB, Micronutrient Deficiency
- Environment protection and conservation
- Poverty Alleviation & Rural Development
- Livelihood Development, Skill Training Program

Key Achievements of the year

Child Education and Participation-

The program approach is based on the premise of Education-Protection-Participation. Established by the International Convention on the Rights of the Child as a fundamental right, education is a foundation to achieve sustainable development goals. Access to education for all must be ensured without discrimination. CID provides children and adults with the knowledge to build a more sustainable and united future, not forgetting that at school, children are better protected against the risks of forced marriages or exploitation. It supports teachers in the adoption of participative practices that respect children's rights.

In order to ensure the right to protection, the behavior of parents, teachers, authorities, but also of children, and young people themselves must change. CID raises awareness among adults and children about children's rights, including the right to protection. In order to fight against the worst forms of child labor, actions are focused on prevention and offering alternatives to the populations involved, as well as the promotion of education among child workers.

In order to enable children to participate as fully as possible in decisions that affect them, CID gives them the opportunity to participate by making them aware of their rights and providing them the tools to defend themselves, and by creating access to participation groups. Even the young people have been integrated into the governance of the association since the creation of the International Youth Council in 2018, supported by Terre des Hommes Suisse.

Thank-You note for our Supporter who support us in Development process-

Centre for Integrated Development would like to take this opportunity to thank our partners and donors for their strong and consistent support, without which we would not have been able to achieve so much. I would especially like to thank our Board Members for their contribution, particularly when we needed to find solutions to big development challenges. During the year, we worked closely with national and state governments to implement our programmes, and provided inputs in their policy making process. Without their support and guidance, we would not have been able to reach more than 900000+ people in Madhya Pradesh to make positive changes in their lives. And finally, I would like to thank all members of the CID family, and all our Partners, Donors, Individual Giving, and other stakeholders who continue to support and believe in our work.
